EquityBee

You Built It, Now Own It

September 2019

Problem

People join startups to be a part of something greater than themselves and reap the fruits of their future success. But in too many cases they can't participate in the success as they cannot keep their equity.

When startup employees, the builders, leave their companies, they have a limited amount of time to exercise their stock options before they expire.

Due to the high cost (strike + tax) and risk, most employees are unable to exercise their options.

Solution

EquityBee enables startup builders to get the capital they need to exercise their stock options before they expire, own their equity, and participate in the future success of startup they helped build.
