Could not wish for kinder hands to be guided by

I never knew there were companies out there as professional and caring during our sad times like Farewill. The whole process from start to finish was flawless. They made me feel like I were the only one accessing their service and held my hand all the way through my sad time. I was a little dubious when they advertised how they deliver the ashes back to you, but I couldnt have wished for anything better. The Gent who delivered my Dad back to me arrived in a very professional private ambulance, calling me twice with updates on the time of his arrive. He was very kind and respectful...just like everyone I spoke with at Farewill. As morbid as it is to talk about planning our own funerals, I would certainly use Farewill for my own. Thank you so much.

After a lifetime of business

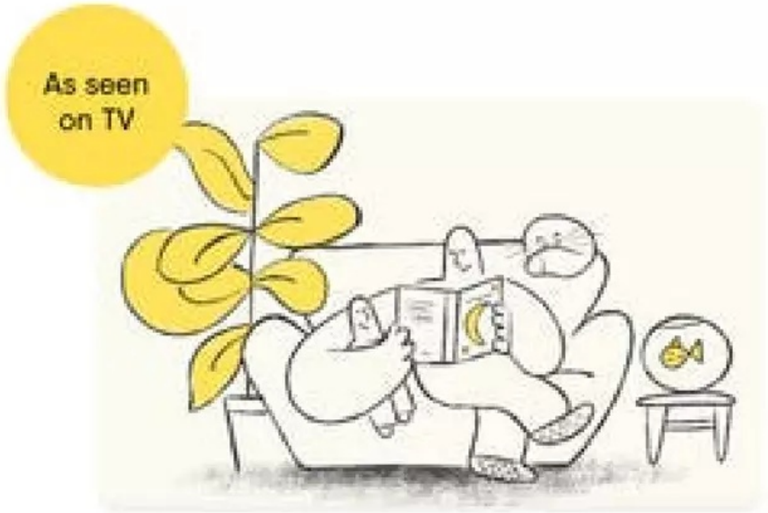

After a lifetime of business, in which I turned over in excess of £300 million, I have had countless dealings with companies handling my legal matters. I have never come across a company as efficient and competent as Farewill Probate. From the first telephone conversation to the final completion the service has been most excellent and is highly recommended. Thank you for everything Yasemin.
