

Professional work has changed

We need better ways to collaborate

Ownership

Next-generation company formation with dynamic equity

Dynamic

Equity

Fixed equity is when team members decide an equity split upfront

Dynamic equity is when team members are rewarded with equity in exchange for their contributions

Did you work Today?

no yes

Gamified timesheet

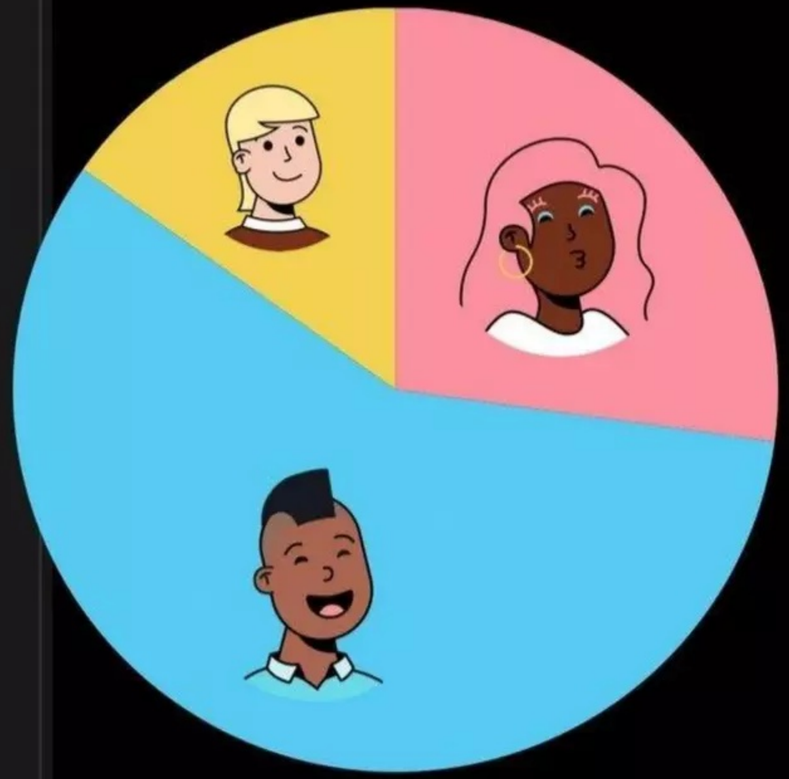

Earn equity in exchange for contributions

Automated Ownership Split

Generated dynamically

For Founders

- Access to talent without cash
- Buy back equity on success
- The simplest way to start up

For Professionals

- Access to startup opportunities
- Work on something you love
- Secondary streams of income

There are 300 million founders in the world today

We're targeting the next 1 billion founders

Source: Micro Biz Mag

$51.8B
WORLDWIDE TAM

2022

SaaS

Plans from $29/month

2023

Marketplace

Connect startups to investment & professional services

2024

Exchange

Convert equity to tokens and trade publicly

BLOCKCHAIN network platform

	Equity Tracking	Global Payroll	Consumer Led
Slicing Pie	✅	❌	❌	Dynamic equity calculator
qadre	❌	✅	❌	Blockchain cap-table management
deel.	❌	✅	❌	Integration of hiring and payroll carta	✅	❌	❌	Cap-table management
Ownership	✅	✅	✅	Next-generation company formation

Dominic Vinyard

Design fanatic. 15+ years freelancer in product design and software dev for startups in fintech and social impact.

Naima Camara

Strategist. Community manager for startup ecosystem and analyst at IDC working with AWS, Oracle, Google Cloud.

Q3 2021

Eagle Labs

Q4 2021

websummit

Q1 2022

FT
FINANCIAL TIMES

Q1 2022

Department for International Trade

Trade mission to New York

Founders, be careful about who you invite to the table and don't give out equity too freely

Angelides
nology

Any founder will tell you how gruelling fundraising can be: speaking to hundreds of investors, meeting after meeting, telling your story and hoping the person on the other side will connect, care and fund your venture. It's not just emotionally exhausting, it's also time away from your business.

Many of the investors you speak to seem like a good fit on paper. So when lucky entrepreneurs are faced with term sheets, how should they decide who to let into their company?

This is the elephant in the room and often the first time you are forced to think about splitting equity.

Some solo founders bring on co-founders at different stages of the business, but I believe the earlier this happens, the easier it is to have conversations about dividing equity. Michael Seibel, group partner of seed fund Y Combinator, advises founders to split equity equally, noting that their dynamic is critical to success and equality ensures trust.

There is also the question of giving employees ownership of the business as, typically, 10 per cent of equity is reserved for senior employees. It can be hard to decide who gets what.

The Ownership app uses an algorithm to calculate the equity split between workers and investors, based on their contributions. For example, people log their hours worked, then the algorithm uses this information to generate a market valuation and cap-table in real time.

It's fairly normal to give away 20 to 25 per cent of your business during a fundraising round. That sounds like a lot — because it is. Sometimes you have to decide what to give away before you even have a product, which can feel scary.

I encourage founders to think of it like subletting a room in your home. Whoever takes the space has the right to come around any time. They might ask you for food, have a look at your kitchen and call out your cleanliness standards.

Your investors will be sticking around for a while . . . So think about every slice of that pie carefully

Try not to give out eq at the beginning to peop not offer long-term valu business. It can be temp equity for payment in ex advice, services or intro but it can be a slippery s you're joined at the hip f time.

Imagine a dining table investors sitting around have to get along, but yo why they are there, beyo Your smallest investor, f may be the person who c first paying customer or you to be a better leader.

Many founders forget t come back to every inves you want to fundraise, an become obstacles if you a aligned.

I have seen scenarios wh have very different agend company. This is where d diligence — on everyone fr lead investor to your angel critical.

Having the right level an expertise is paramount too investors commit to the bu have they behaved previou things have not gone so we example? Have they remov or interfered? Speak to ent in companies they have ex written off. Remember tha of an investor can be harde getting a divorce.

As more founders make s individuals to write smaller dealing with a long tail of in be cumbersome. Several pla simplify managing your cap including AngelList Venture Newcomers, Vauban and Od have set out to democratise cap tables.

I'd love to see more owner remain with the founders an transparency throughout th fundraising process. As the longer, and more personali

Public Beta

Download on the App Store

GET IT ON Google Play

Working closely with 20 co-creator teams

90%

Would pay +$30/mo for pro plan

100%

Will never go back to fixed equity

Pre-Seed/Seed

Round closes 1st May 2022

International Workers Day

seis

APPENDIX

Fig 1. Did you work?

Fig 2. Log hours

Fig 3. Timeline

Fig 4. Ownership split

Is equity only based on hours worked?
No. Equity can be awarded for anything. Hours, milestones, commission, etc

Are everybody's hours equal?
No. Market rates determine relative equity

Does this create a messy cap-table?
No. Buyout (drag-along) clauses are built in so founders can buy out contributors at a fixed rate

Can you ensure quality work?
Yes. Work must be approved by the founders

Can I still raise VC investment with this model?
Yes. Ownership can be used to manage your options pool after a traditional raise

Do you offer legally binding contracts?
No. Our terms and conditions make it clear that teams should put external contracts in place

If my company or client isn't on Ownership, can I use it anyway?
Yes. Ownership can generate traditional invoices too.